MVCTC Welcomes Students for 2013-2014 School Year

Clayton, Ohio -- The Miami Valley Career Technology Center (MVCTC) began their 42nd year of classes on Thursday, August 15, 2013. MVCTC Superintendent Dr. Nick Weldy, staff, and Student Ambassadors greeted close to 1,000 junior students enrolled for the 2013-2014 school year.

MVCTC is preparing high school students for careers in fields such as animal care, agriculture resource management, Air Force ROTC, healthcare, architecture, auto technician, aviation maintenance, biotechnology, business, computer networking, computer repair, computer game programming, carpentry, cosmetology, criminal justice, culinary arts, dental assisting, digital design, early childhood education, electrical trades, geospatial information systems, graphic arts, photography, HVAC, heavy equipment operation, marketing, media & video production, natural resource management, power technologies, precision machining, robotics, sports medicine, veterinary science, and welding.

This year MVCTC is excited to continue the tradition of ensuring students are college and career ready, by offering early college connections with Clark State Community College, Miami University Middletown, Sinclair Community College, and Wright State University. MVCTC students now have even more options to earn college credit while still in high school, making a college degree even more affordable and attainable.
